PoconoArts' May Emerging Artist

If you've attended any exhibitions at the Pocono Arts Council or at Origins Gallery in the past couple of years then you already know Jane Mayhew MacHale. She's the young lady enthusiastically taking photographs, capturing each and every moment with a clear lens and a steady hand. Many of her finest shots are posted on Facebook and shared by many. And she does it simply for her love of art!

This passion doesn't just manifest itself in her photography. Jane, an East Stroudsburg resident since 1988 and a member of the Pocono Photo Club, is also a rising star with the paintbrush. Studying under the talented and respected Jim Smeltz, she has been developing a style of her own which has been well received in our local art galleries. In fact, her acrylic painting "Sycamore in Snow" was one of fifteen works chosen for exhibition and auction at PoconoArts' May 5th "Spring for the Arts Celebration of the Next Generation of Art". The Pocono Arts Council is proud to name Jane as May's "Emerging Artist".

Born and raised in New Jersey, this now single mother of two was sketching cartoon characters and animals when she was only four years old. Her talent grew in elementary school and throughout high school and it was no surprise that she found herself studying Advertising Design at Trenton State University.

Her art was put in low gear while she raised her two children and now that she finds herself with more free time she has immersed herself in the local art scene, spending much of her time at Origins Gallery which is now located within the Pocono Arts Council.

Success in the art world is not just measured by talent at hand. Attitude is a much needed component to that success. And the bright and personable Jane Mayhew MacHale has what it takes. Her optimism and enthusiasm is unmatched. Combined with her talent she can look forward to a bright future in our world of art!

IN MEMORIAM

The board and members of the Pocono Arts Council extend their sympathies to the family and friends of Irene Bartz who passed away on April 16. Irene was a long time member of the ARTSPACE Co-op Gallery and the Pocono Arts Council.

Pocono Arts Council & Origins Gallery at Pocono Arts announce "Open Air Gallery"

Open Air Gallery is based on the idea that the arts on display are not only an attraction in itself - an array of artistic subject matter created in several mediums by local artists - but act as a beacon to the area they are set up in, which in turn helps promote the surrounding community in many ways. Some people who have never experienced a gallery exhibition will be able to have this opportunity, and the artists will have another form of accessibility for getting their works seen publicly and possibly sold.

Once a month during summer and fall, Origins Gallery at Pocono Arts will assemble up to 10 artists (chosen through jury process in advance), to exhibit up to 3 pieces of work on the sidewalks and other areas in front of chosen locations within Stroudsburg Borough's downtown.

The work can be sold on the spot, with 20% commission going to the Pocono Arts Council (Sponsor) on all sales of hand-created artwork (no kits or crafts). Most open air galleries will be on a Friday evening, 5-7 pm, but may change (with advance notice) in the event of weather or other issues. A schedule of dates and locations will be available at Pocono Arts Council starting May 1, 2017. Artists will need to remain with their works for the duration of the gallery display.

If you are interested in participating in this exciting, new exhibition opportunity, please contact Pocono Arts Council today at 570-476-4460 or info@poconoarts.org to get a copy of the prospectus for the juried entry to these exhibitions.

Pocono Arts Council and Origins Gallery at PoconoArts believe that by working together, the community, artists and businesses in downtown Stroudsburg can have a positive and rewarding experience!
